

I'm Glad You Think So

Roger McNamee

Verse

C#m

Sunlight through a hotel window

B C#m

Marina swaying white

C#m

Gentle swells and harbor smells

B C#m

Afternoon and night

C#m

Voices from the café tables

B C#m

(A) Soundtrack for their life

C#m

She dreamed he'd be a memory soon

B C#m

He dreamed she'd be his wife

Chorus

A E

He said, "I think you're lovely."

B C#m

He said, "You always glow."

A E B C#m

He said, "You thrill me like no other, and forever more"

A E

He said, "You take my breath away.

B C#m

You're perfect. This I know."

C#m B C#m

She turned to him and said, "I'm glad you think so."

Twilight turns to evening
Evening turns to night
Heartbeats slow, and traffic flows
Artificial light
Voices from the street below and
Voices in his head
From a dream she stood before him
This is what he said

Chorus

He said, "I think you're lovely."
He said, "You always glow."
He said, "You thrill me like no other, and forever more"
He said, "You take my breath away.
You're perfect. This I know."
She turned to him and said, "I'm glad you think so."

Bridge

C#m B A C#m
She said, "I'm glad you think that I'm as perfect as can be.
A E C#m
I only wish I saw in you the things you see in me."
A B
With that she turned and left him
G#m A (walk down)
Standing by the door
E A
But as she disappeared he cried
A A B B
An echo forever more

Chorus

He said, "you know you're lovely."
You know you always glow.
You know you thrill me like no other, and forever more
You know you take my breath away.
You're perfect. This I know."
And in his head she said, "I'm glad you think so."
And in his head she said, "I'm glad you think so."

June 11, 2006